Introduction

This document provides the principles for conducting the internal audits of the quality management system according to the requirements of the sub clause 8.8 of the PNS ISO/IEC 17025:2017 standard.

2. Criteria and Implementation of Internal Audits

Internal audits intend to assess periodically the implementation of the quality management system, according to its own specifications as described in the paragraphs of its procedures and documents. In this respect, internal audits assess the conformity of the quality management system to the requirements of the PNS ISO/IEC 17025:2017 standard.

All the elements of the quality management system are assessed internally at least once a year according to an annual plan of internal audits, which determines the elements to be audited, the internal auditors and the time schedule. The internal auditors are selected according to specific criteria to make the audits effective and reliable.

In addition, internal audits may be conducted in specific elements and areas of the implementation of the quality management system in the frame of a cause analysis process in special cases.

The recording of audits is organized in a way to provide full evidence of the findings. In addition, a quantitative approach is used to provide quantitative results of the performance of the quality management system.

3. Non-Conformities and Implementation of Actions

Non-conformities identified in internal audits are handled accordingly. Corrective actions are determined to resolve non-conformities. In addition, it is possible to have preventive actions as well as actions for improvement. The implementation of the determined corrective/preventive actions is followed up by using the proper tools of the quality management system and the management responsibilities.
